Non-Partisan Group Joins Hands To Pass Constitutional Amendment

Representatives from civic, cultural and school groups gathered at Smith's Sapphire Room on Wednesday to marshal their forces to bring about the passage of the amendment to call a constitutional convention. Presided over by Mrs. Ward Bushart, county chairwoman the group conducted a question and answer period and reviewed the need for the study of Kentucky's Constitution.

Teams from East and West Fulton P-TA groups will organize on election day to bring voters to the polls in the interest of passing the amendment.

Meanwhile opposition to the amendment collapsed this week when the State committee for Constitution Improvement issued a statement reporting as fiction the opposition to the amendment.

Both Democrats and Republicans have endorsed the amendment to call a convention. The statement from headquarters, follows:

"Opposition to a limited constitutional convention call, which is fictional at its best, completed its collapse yesterday with a statement reported as fiction.

Jottings from Jo's

Note Book

When I left the Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles this past summer I did so with the same great admiration and respect for John F. Kennedy as did every delegate and spectator there. When people would discuss the convention with me and ask about Kennedy's chances to win my stock remark was: "He's bound to win. When those Kennedy boys start moving their organization over America the election is over."

You and I have seen both Richard Nixon and John Kennedy in operation, both personally and over television. We have heard their platforms; we have marveled at their ability to transmit their programs to the people of America. Many of us have said up to now, that it would be a close race. And it might have been had Nixon pitted his campaign organization against a less formidable one.

I say up until now, because I think that barring any unforeseen circumstances John Kennedy will be the next President of the United States and Lyndon Johnson will be the next vice-president. I do not make these statements because I am an oracle or because I have any inside information. I glean this information from the same sources that you do and that is that the pollsters, the surveyors and everybody else says that Kennedy will win from anything from a few million to a landslide.

If the same pattern follows in the election as did in the convention you will see the "doubtful" States running to join the Kennedy bandwagon just as they did at Los Angeles. And there is a bandwagon, don't you doubt that for a minute, because even the Republican National chairman announced Wednesday that the Republicans were out to stop the bandwagon from rolling.

Being a Democrat I am happy to see the turn of events not so much because I think that Kennedy is an extremely brilliant, capable and dedicated man, but more than anything because it proves that in this land we call America, a man can ascend to any heights without prejudice for race, creed or color. In this respect I think it only appropriate to quote a statement made by George Washington addressing the First Baptist Church of Baltimore. Washington said:

"We have abundant reason to rejoice, that in this land, the light of Truth and Reason has triumphed over the power of bigotry and superstition, and that every person here may worship God according to the dictates of his own heart. In this enlightened age, and in this land of equal liberty, it is our boast, that a man's religious tenets will not forfeit the protection of the laws, nor deprive him of the right of attaining and holding the HIGHEST offices that are known in the United States."

The oil men, led by a woman, Mrs. Pearl A. Orenduff, are back in Union City and the drilling of test wells for oil or gas at three or more locations within the month are in the making.

Religious Prejudice Dangerous To America, Protestant Minister Warns

(Ed's Note: The following letter to the editor from a Protestant minister is self-explanatory.)

Dear Editor:

In recent weeks, Americans have heard and read many statements about separation of church and state. I am a very firm believer in this principle. However, I do believe that moral principles should very definitely govern the actions of individual citizens. Moral principles, and respect for the rights of others have been two outstanding characteristics that have distinguished us as being different from many other nations of the world. In spite of our shortcomings and mistakes, our country is still a stronghold for freedom of religion, and separation of church and state as practiced under our democracy.

If we as individuals expect to

Kennedy Bandwagon Rolls Through Fulton High; Democrats, Cooper Win

Senator John F. Kennedy's national victory was predicted in significant terms at the Fulton High School on Wednesday morning when the Democratic candidate won comfortably over his Republican opponent, Richard Nixon. Kennedy polled 93 votes to Nixon's 73. The votes were similar for Lyndon Johnson, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate and Henry Cabot Lodge, the Republican candidate.

But in the race for United States Senator there was ballot-splitting with John Sherman Cooper, the Republican nominee barely nosing out Keen Johnson. The vote was 86 for Cooper and 78 for Keen Johnson.

Indicative of the effective work that has been done in Fulton in the areas of other issues on the ballot, the amendment to call a constitutional convention won overwhelmingly as did the proposal to issue $100,000,000 in bonds for road and parks. The constitutional amendment got 109 "yes" votes and only 11 "no" votes. The bond issue got 118 affirmative votes and only eight "No" votes.

Wednesday morning the Fulton High School was a combination convention hall, election precinct and a field day for orators. Had John Kennedy and Richard Nixon peeped in to see the enthusiasm, the clash of debate and the remarkable manner in which the students displayed their knowledge of national politics they would have learned something for their own campaigns.

With dynamic Thomas Carney playing the role of Richard Nixon and brilliant Josephine Hancock, the role of John Kennedy the students and this reporter got a future view of what politics will be later in this generation. Armed with as many facts as the national candidates themselves the two principals charged and counter-charged with such outstanding efficiency that the students and this reporter were caught in the wild, and tumultuous applause given the various points made by the candidates.

Cleta Beggs, proved a real match for the quick and sparkling Carney, pounding the lectern, flashing pamphlets and generally making it known that the Democratic party is the party to elect next Tuesday. Cleta played the role of Lyndon Johnson, but the Senator from Texas will never see the day when he could work up the crowd as did this fiery young lady. Bill Leneave, much like the real life character he portrayed (Cabot Lodge) employed cool delivery and logic to put across his points to the "voters."

The candidates touched on Quomoy and Matsu, the farm problem, aid to education and elderly citizens and the information they imparted showed a tremendous knowledge of the issues in the campaign.

Hal Warren's discussion on the amendment to call a constitutional convention obviously accounted for the tremendous affirmative vote given the issue. Hal displayed the fact that he knew his subject and was wholeheartedly in favor of studying the constitution for a progressive Kentucky.

Pandemonium broke out when Cleta Beggs retaliated to Carney about Nixon's experience in the legislative and executive branches.

Said Cleta: "Lincoln had legislative and no executive experience and he was a great president. Herbert Hoover had executive experience and look what he did."

And Carney brought down the house when, in discussing the islands of Quomoy and Matsu he said: "Give 'em one thing and they'll take another," obviously referring to the Communists. But Josephine Hancock, quick on her feet, quoted Secretary of State Herter when she said that the controversial islands are "strategically indefensible."

Judy Moore was taking bows Wednesday afternoon for her effective campaign work in the Kennedy campaign while Mike Walker's associates were patting

County Roads To Suffer If Bond Issue Fails, Ward Warns In Report To Voters

State Commissioner of Highways Henry Ward this week said that the parts of the road program that must suffer if the $100 million highway and parks bond issue does not pass are the rural road program and the rural secondary program.

On a panel broadcast carried by a network of 43 Kentucky radio stations, Ward said the state Department of Highways is holding up all of its plan for such rural and rural secondary roads until after the November 8 election.

Ward said, "If the bond issue does not pass, we will simply have to cut out a lot of projects we now have planned because we will not have adequate financing."

Ward explained that it takes about $20 million a year to match the federal highway grants that will be available to Kentucky for the next few years.

Since 1957, these matching funds have been from the $100 million bond issue passed by the state voters in 1956.

Ward said this bond money will be exhausted by July, 1961, and if no new bond money is available the department faces three alternatives.

—Simply decline to match and use the federal funds. "I assume Kentuckians do not want that to happen."

Raise taxes to provide the $20 million a year needed to match the federal grants. He said this would require a 2-1-2 cent per gallon increase in present gasoline taxes.

—Eliminate the building of rural roads and rural secondary roads almost entirely.

Ward assured the panel of radio station executives that if the

Kennedy's Philosophy To Help Farmer Right, Statistics Show

While Richard Nixon soft-pedals the aid he will give to the farmers and John Kennedy speaks specifically about the help he believes farmers will need, a well-informed resident in Fulton County brought in the following figures about the farmers' importance to the national economy. The figures were compiled from a bulletin published by the Tennessee Agricultural Extension service. They follow:

Food is cheap. It has been getting cheaper for years, based on that part of your income that goes for food.

Mr. Consumer, did you know that 23 per cent of all consumer income was spent for food in the years 1935-39. And in the year 1959, only 21 per cent of the consumer income went for food. And that isn't all—if the consumer ate the same as he did 20 years ago,

The trooper identified the dead as Mrs. Elyse Parrish Copeland, 22, Route 3, McKenzie, the mother of four children, and James Robert Allison, 32, Huntington. Charles W. Allison, brother of James Robert, was the third person in the car and was reported not injured.

Jacqueline Kennedy 'At Home' To Await Two Big Events Soon

By Mrs. John F. Kennedy

November 8th now is only days away. Each day gets more and more exciting and more and more filled with suspense.

Wednesday I was in New York with Jack and rode in the ticker tape parade. Never have I been more thrilled than I was then to see so many thousands of people cheering for Jack. Afterwards people told me it was the largest crowd since the parade for Lindbergh.

That was the last time I'll be campaigning with Jack before the election as my doctor has now said I should stay in Washington. Sorry as I am not to go with him more, I'm glad to be home with Caroline now because she keeps seeing her father's picture on lapel pins and bumpers and wondering why so many people are talking about him and why he isn't home more often. (Ed's Note: The Kennedys are expecting their second child momentarily.)

Several days ago the Subcommittee on Medical Care for the Aged released its report for the Women's Committee for the New Frontier. So many people all over the country had written me about this problem that I was particularly interested in what they had to say. So often this is considered a problem affecting only older people, whereas, actually it equally affects those younger people who take care of their parents and sometimes must choose between this and educating their children.

The report stressed the importance of paying for increased medical care through the social security system rather than requiring that older people pass an income means test in order to get medical benefits. This way each person pays for his own medical care by contributing during his working years to a system which provides assistance in the later years when he needs help to meet his medical bills.

Yesterday Dr. Benjamin Spock was in town and stopped by the house to see me. Along with most mothers in the country, I have read his books and admire him greatly. It was fascinating to talk to him not only about children, but also about his views on education and medical care for the aged. He is most anxious that there be immediate legislation to build more schools and provide for higher salaries for teachers. I'm glad to say, he believes that Jack is the man best qualified to build on a realistic program in these fields.

I also had an interesting chat with Mrs. Kefauver, Mrs. Gore and Mrs. Ellington from Tennessee, who were most encouraging about the election in their state. I hope reports from everywhere will continue to be good, and that everyone will vote on November 8th.

Your 'Yes' Vote For Constitutional Convention Means Only A Study Of Issue, Not To Change It

The Union County Advocate, one of Kentucky's prize-winning newspapers expressed our sentiments completely when they editorialized recently on the great need for a proposed constitutional convention. While a few misguided, misinformed malcontents roam the state attempting to defeat the issue on the ballot, we concur wholeheartedly with the sentiments expressed in the Union County Advocate. The editorial follows:

"When planning a long and vital trip, the wise motorist usually takes his car by a garage for a check-up. He doesn't fear that competent mechanics will scrap a good automobile in need of a little repair. Neither should Kentuckians fear that a convention called to check only some out-model parts would scrap a good constitution.

"As Kentucky starts upon a vital journey to overtake the rest of the nation in this nuclear age, the state constitution—a good vehicle of government—needs a check-up in 12 of its parts. In them, the 1891-model vehicle has developed a few coughs and rattles. Its brakes are grabbing in dangerous places on the road.

"A convention is being proposed on the November 8 ballot to study limited repair of this vehicle. If the voters approve, the 1962 Legislature would provide for election of delegates, the most competent constitutional mechanics that the people could choose.

"Voters do not have to decide November 8 on whether the constitution needs revision; they decide only on whether to take it to the shop for inspection.

"Here, the people's delegates could not tamper with the whole vehicle but could suggest repairs for only 12 parts. The people could accept or reject whatever revision was made. "In repairing their constitution, the people have a hand in every turn of the wrench. First, their elected representatives and senators in the General Assembly have to call in two consecutive sessions for an election on a convention. This was done in the 1959 special and 1960 general session of the Legislature. Then the people vote, which they will do November 8, on the proposal for a convention.

"Should they approve, then their representatives and senators would provide for election of delegates in November, 1962, to convene in February, 1963. Then, as pointed out before, whatever revisions are made would be submitted to the voters.

"This may seem a dilatory rate of work in putting our vehicle of government in shape for a journey into a swift age—four or five years at the very minimum, three sessions of the General Assembly, three elections.

"But this deliberation—not dilatoriness—is a safeguard. It ensures that many constitutional experts of various political beliefs will have a hand in the revision and provide a check upon each other. No single administration at Frankfort has total influence; the Governor in office when revision is proposed is not in office when it is adopted. Over all, the people reign.

"From these deliberations can emerge a vehicle of government for the age of space travel. In tightening its rickety parts, the revisionists can only protect it from collapse and preserve in the new age its eternal principles from the old.

"A vote for a convention November 8 is a decision to defend the constitution from its own weakness, rather than to scrap it."

The Fulton City police report that Monday night was the "best Halloween ever had in Fulton." There were many people—both young and old—out in town, either trick or treating, soaping windows and cars, walking around in their costumes or driving around to see the sights.

But, according to police, no damage by pranksters was reported.

A good joke was played on Hugh Fly, owner of the Derby Restaurant, Halloween night by his wife, Ann, and three of his waitresses.

The waitresses, dressed up in costumes, paid a visit to the Fly home in Highlands. After they had identified themselves to Ann, she told them to go to the Derby, walk in and pick up a bag of the Jaycee candy, as she was running low for the "trick or treaters."

The girls did just that, with Mr. Fly looking on. But, they got one each. Mr. Fly said, "That will be one dollar each." The girls kept going out the door. Mr. Fly came from behind the counter. He said, "That belongs to the Jaycees." The girls ran. Mr. Fly was right behind them. But he gave up the race, when they cut across his back yard.

Later, the girls and Mrs. Fly returned to the restaurant, with Mrs. Fly bringing the extra two bags of candy.

Was Mr. Fly's face red! And, he sure has received some ribbing! Some joke, eh!

One of the bravest men I know is Constable John Adams of South Fulton. Recently, some Union City men were in Fulton drinking beer. They got into a fuss with some Fulton men. The Union City group went home and returned with more friends, and the two groups—from Union City and from Fulton—met out on a country road about three miles south of here.

The South Fulton police department received a couple of complaints from residents of the area, telling of a brawl—of a large group of men fighting with clubs, black-jacks and knives. Constable Adams was called and he went, alone to investigate. When he arrived upon the scene, there were about thirty men and boys fighting, according to Constable Adams.

I understand that Adams told the group, "I haven't come here to hurt anyone, or to get hurt, but will you all get in your cars and follow me to the court house?"

About eleven of the group did as he asked. Those of age were fined and four minors were put on a "sundown curfew" of one month by the Obion County Judge.

I understand that the judge told Adams, he had two of the toughest men in Obion County in the group—that they had almost beaten a man to death some time back.

John (Constable Adams) was advised not to attempt to handle such a large fighting group alone, any more.

I volunteered my services to John, just in case he had to go out alone on such a case again, and of course, I know he'll do just that! Don't you too, think he's a very brave young man? The next time you see him, tell him so.

An Historical review of THE CIVIL WAR DAY-BY-DAY (Material is from publication of exactly one hundred years ago original versions from the Library of Congress, Washington. Reporting in the papers was usually very one-sided; we seek to be fair in coverage and preserve a national balance . . . ED).

BY WILLIAM E. MOHREY

The Prince of Wales visited the United States during the early autumn of 1860. In some newspapers there were small cries of "We won our independence" and various other forms of flag-raising, but the nation set out to welcome the son of Queen Victoria and Prince Albert to our States. Cities outdid themselves, and everywhere the ladies were a twitter over the slightest hand-wave of the Prince. (With ladies, the Prince seldom stopped at a mere hand-wave.) On September 25, the papers announced that the Prince went quail shooting in Illinois and killed 28 birds. His party killed 185. His Highness would go to St. Louis on the 26th.

Before the real Prince of Wales got to St. Louis, he had an impersonator, and St. Louis had a very noisy "practical" joke played on the entire town. A man named Bohanan got up a party similar to the Princes, dressed the men in theatre attire, and let it be known that they were the party of the Prince of Wales, but they did not want to enter St. Louis officially at that time. These notices were spread over St. Louis, and very soon every lady with a carriage was fighting to be in the Prince's parade.

The bogus party stepped off the ferryboat from East St. Louis and found waiting a "splendid carriage with liveried footman. They were received with shouts of joy by British citizens. The crowd began to grow, and tried to unhitch the horses so they could pull the carriage through the streets themselves.

"Every woman in town tried to get close to the Royal carriage. Those in carriages tried everything possible to get the Prince to wave to them . . . and now and then he gave them an indolent wave of his hand which set them off into ecstasies of delight."

The short of it was that the crowd saw the Prince to his hotel, where he said he was tired and needed rest, so the crowd permitted him to enter his hotel for a few moments privacy. That was the last seen of the man, within a few moments it was spread about that it was no Prince at all, but the joke loving Mr. Bohanan. Needless to say, Mr. Bohanan had no friends left in the parade, but the City as a whole seemed ready to forgive him. Fact, the City seemed to be proud of the man, and the papers reprinted tales of his former pranks.

At one time, Bohanan had pretended to have a keg of gunpowder which he sat on the open fire in a banquet hall. The wooden keg began to burn, Bohanan stood back to enjoy the fire, and the banqueters scattered to "safe" places blocks away. They found out later that the keg was filled with black sand, and that Bohanan had enjoyed the banquet after the others had left.

A favorite trick of Bohanan, it was said, was to throw his voice into the street while soldiers were drilling. The officer giving the orders would order the men to march, a voice would then order them to halt, turn around, shoulder arms, and soon there would be a great mix-up with frayed tempers. St. Louis was showing signs that some people were a bit weary of Mr. Bohanan's jokes. Just the same, the Nation laughed at the "Prince of Wales" parade, for the men of the land were getting a bit wary of the real Prince.

Perhaps one reason why Bohanan was allowed to escape without punishment was that his jokes took the people's minds off the worsening relations between the North and the South.

We were so glad to learn that Carl Hurst, Fulton High football player who was seriously injured in a ball game recently, was returned to his home here last Thursday in a Hornbeak ambulance. Hurst had been in a patient in the Baptist Hospital for the past several weeks.

We would like to wish "Happy Birthday" to Mrs. Maude Elliott, who will observe her 81st birthday on Thursday, November 3. She is at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. W. Mullins, Fulton, Route 3, where she is convalescing from a broken hip. How about sending Mrs. Elliott cards? I know she would more than appreciate them.

Congratulations to Miss Nancy Faulkner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Faulkner of Route 3, Union City, a graduate of South Fulton High School, who has been elected secretary-treasurer of Delta Kappa, women's residence hall organization at UTMB. She is an honor roll student.

On September 23, of 1860, there was one of these "Fugitive Slave Cases" which were becoming so common. A United States marshal and two deputies went into Iberia, Morrow County, Ohio, with warrants to arrest three fugitive slaves. One of the slaves was captured and examined by a magistrate who, by law, could only send the man back to his master. One of the deputies was set upon by a crowd of 60 to 70 men who handled him roughly. The deputy had his clothes torn off, his money taken away, and was then threatened with hanging. The crowd finally decided to cut off the man's hair and free him. Shooting broke out between the crowd and the other deputy and the marshal. One member of the crowd was wounded, the officers were obliged to leave without the prisoners.

The papers were filled with such news. No wonder that most men preferred to hear of the antics of jokesters such as Bohanan!

SERMONETTE OF THE WEEK

Why Vote?

By George R. Fitzgerald
First Lieutenant,
U. S. Air Force Reserve

There is something vibrant and hopeful—even colorful—about elections in a free society: the campaign rallies and speeches, buttons and banners, journalists' quips and cartoons, and whistle stops in every nook and cranny throughout this vast Republic. During campaign time the young and old become a pleasant mixture of the gay and sober politician. "May the best man win!" becomes the national slogan.

THE MORE freedom a nation has, the more intelligent and informed must its citizens be to use that freedom well. Voting is both a privilege and a duty. The right to vote creates responsibilities. We are obligated to weigh issues carefully. Voting for a man because of family traditions or his looks is not intelligent voting.

When the American people prepare to go to the polls, the world watches. Why? Because America is a free nation—a world leader. What happens in Washington affects nearly every nation on earth. When our candidates speak on disarmament, foreign aid, social security, medical benefits for the aged, labor and business problems, missile programs or the price of Cuban sugar, the world listens. America is committed to world leadership. So the world has a heavy stake, for better or worse, in the way Americans regard their voting privileges and duties.

NO CANDIDATE can expect to escape the piercing look of a well-informed, free voting public. What is the candidate's view on a fair wage and aid to poor and underdeveloped nations? What is his attitude on scandals in our public life; his policy toward the physical, educational and spiritual health of our nation? What are his plans for cooperation with other nations for peace and justice in the world?

DEMOCRACY works only when its citizens are interested and informed. A society which says "let's leave the government to the politicians" becomes lazy and stagnant. It surrenders its freedom. In a democracy everyone must be a politician. The word "politician" is a noble word. It refers to the art of running a government well. We must keep politics healthy. Each of us must vote for the best man. A free people has a serious obligation to take an interest in their government.

If the day ever comes in this nation when we're not allowed to worship God according to the light of conscience, it will be because for years we never thought it mattered for whom we voted.

HONESTY, justice and prudence—all the virtues with which we like to pride ourselves—are basic to good government. The man for whom we vote, elected from the people, by the people, and for the people, will serve all the people.

Listen! Weigh the issues! Know your candidates and their platforms. Vote intelligently! Vote for the BEST man!

Memories Of The Big Snow Recalled By Old Article

Recently Lee Peery handed Mrs. Cary Fields, News correspondent, the following old newspaper article, and at that time the temperature was hitting the high 90 degrees and "by only reading it, just cooled things off a bit around the Fields household", Mrs. Fields said.

Mrs. Edd Fields, too, remembers all about it and they both read and re-read this very interesting article written by Mr. Peery's father, the late J. L. Peery. It reads as follows:

MEMORIES OF THE BIG SNOW...

By J. L. Peery

In the fall of 1885, I with my mother, brother and sisters moved to Martin, and settled in a house in the south part of town near the I. C. Railroad, about where the old tobacco factory now stands that belonged to Jim Lovelace. I do not remember very much about the weather until February 1886. The first day of February (which was first Monday) dawned bright and fair, reasonably warm and men were going about in their shirtsleeves until late afternoon when it began to get chilly and began to get cloudy. It began snowing some time after night.

On the morning of February 2 the snow was nine inches deep at day light and still snowing strong. At noon it was 17 inches. In the afternoon the wind arose to a regular gale and the snow increased until it was difficult to see a man across the street. It was hard to walk against it or to see where to walk. A man could easily get lost. It began to get dark about 4 o'clock, in fact most people kept their lamps burning all afternoon. All railroads were blocked. The passenger train from the south due here about 1 o'clock didn't arrive till 9 p. m. It had two engines and stuck just in front of our house. It was still snowing so hard we could scarcely see the lights. They cut the engines from the coaches and walked way up to the depot and by that time they were both out of water and had to cool down. They couldn't get back to the coaches. At this point I went to bed and didn't know anything more about it until the next morning.

The next morning I never saw such a sight in my life. The snow was drifted until it looked like little hills where no hills were. My first job was to get to the well and get a bucket of water. Down next to the house the wind had swept the ground bare. But between me and the well was a drift—I couldn't stand on the ground and see over. I had no shovel so I tackled with my hands and feet.

I soon found I was making no progress and the snow was falling all over me, so I put on an overcoat and turned my back on it and worked my way through it backwards.

The morning of Wednesday, the 3rd of February, dawned fair and cold with right smart wind still blowing. It is hard to say just how deep the snow was because it was so badly drifted it was hard to find an average. But the best measurement I could get ran around 30 inches. However, I saw drifts in Martin 10 or more feet deep. Early Wednesday morning Martin began digging out from under. Mr. J. I. Wilks, mayor at that time, and also station agent for the I. C. railroad, hired every man he could get either white or colored, to shovel until he had about 75 men at work and would have had more but ran out of shovels. He bought every shovel in Martin and needed more.

The first job was to get to the passenger cars that were left one-half mile down the track the night before. About 10 o'clock they got a path shoveled out down the track to the cars and the passengers got out and walked up to the hotel. Mr. George F. Bowden was running the hotel at that time.

I feel like I could not be doing justice to his memory if I did not stop just here and relate this little incident.

When the passengers had left the train it was found there was a woman with a little child about two or three years old that had no money and she wouldn't go to the hotel because she had no money. When they arrived someone told Mr. Bowden about the case and he called his porter and told him to get her. He went and took the child on his back and she walked the path behind him. He gave her the same fare the rest of them got and kept her as long as he did the rest.

Those two engines that were out of water needed to be fixed up, so

Mr. Wilks bought all the buckets he could get and the train crews formed a line and brought water from a pond that was just above the Railroad crossing where the Union depot now stands. After they had filled them and raised steam they shoveled snow into the tender and turned steam on it to make water.

Mr. B. M. Pointer was telegraph operator at that time.

There were 2 car loads of mules that had been shut up in the cars so long they had to get them out and water and feed them. They could not get to the stock pen. The snow was drifted some eight or ten feet deep around the shed.

They ran the cars on the crossing and built a tram way and shoveled out a path to the shed, and unloaded them on the railroad crossing, then drove them to the shed. Meanwhile Mr. Wilks was having the walks cleaned all over town as fast as he could but it took two or three days to open them and Martin wasn't half as large then as it is now. The railroad stayed blocked until Thursday afternoon, when a snow plow came through from the north and cleared the track. This passenger train that I spoke of set there from

Tuesday night, 9 o'clock until Thursday afternoon at 4 p. m., and then came a coal shortage. For two or three weeks after the snow fell they couldn't get any coal in Martin. Lots of people got out of coal and would buy, borrow or steal from one another. When they did finally get a car through it was divided around. They wouldn't let anybody have but just a certain amount. Fortunately, after a few days it turned warm, and the snow melted so fast the rivers and creeks all got in flood stage and in about ten days it was about all gone except the big drifts.

I can't think of but two men who were living in Martin at that time that still live there and they are T. H. Farmer and G. W. Hall, and I guess they could tell some things that perhaps I have forgotten.

Homemakers Plan Study of Public Speaking Program

Public Speaking is the topic for study in the homemakers November meetings.

Every club was represented by two leaders at the training school conducted by Miss Wilma Vandijer, Assistant State Leader of Home Demonstration Agents.

This lesson is of interest to every person in the county who would like to express themselves more clearly.

The leaders are planning workshops as a part of the lesson. Don't miss the fun.

Mrs. Charles Hickerson was elected Public Speaking County Chairman by the group.

Clyde Corum, Long Time Magistrate In Fulton County Dies On Monday

Clyde M. Corum, Fulton County magistrate from the Crutchfield community (District 2) for the past 16 years, was found dead on his farm about 2 p. m. Monday. He was 67.

The vacancy occasioned by the death of Mr. Corum will be filled by Governor Bert Combs. Governor Combs told the News on Wednesday that he will make the appointment as soon as possible.

His body was discovered by Damon Vick, a neighbor.

According to Mrs. Corum, her husband left home around 11 a. m. to go to a woods lot on his farm for some wood. When he failed to come home for lunch, Mrs. Corum, who has been ill, contacted Vick and asked him to go and search for her husband.

Vick left the house around 1:30 p. m. and within 30 minutes found Mr. Corum lying beside his truck, which had already been loaded.

Dr. Glenn Bushart was summoned to the scene where he pronounced Mr. Corum dead. He said Mr. Corum had been dead about an hour.

Mr. Corum had had heart trouble and a heart attack is believed to have been the cause of death.

Mr. Corum, also a farmer, lived on Crutchfield, Route 1.

He was born April 2, 1893 at Crutchfield, son of Alexander and Elizabeth Hoodenpyle Corum. He was a member of the Methodist Church at Crutchfield.

Besides his wife, he leaves two sons, Capt. James E. Corum of San Francisco, Calif., and W. P. Sheehan of Fulton, Route 4; a brother, Walter Corum of Crutchfield; seven grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Services were held at the Whitten Funeral Home chapel at 3 p. m. Wednesday. The Rev. J. F. McMinn and the Rev. E. R. Bell officiated. Burial was in Pleasant View Memorial Gardens on the Clinton Highway.

Turkey Shoot To Be Held Sunday

A turkey shoot will be held each Sunday until Thanksgiving at 1 p. m. at Fairfield Ball Park. The shoot is sponsored by the Jaycees.

Regulation trap and still targets will be used. A Browning Automatic will be given away on November 13.

PHOTOGRAPHIC TRICKERY . . . And the News is guilty of the charge. Not knowing whether the Republicans or Democrats would win the mock election held at Fulton High Wednesday, the reporter took both sides winning . . . but these smiles may be tears now for the Nixon partisans. Fulton To Get Report From Evaluation Teams

The twin cities will get a report card on their community activities this month when a group of industrialists and civic leaders come here to "look over" the development progress of the area, the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce announced today.

"Evaluation teams" will visit 55 Kentucky communities during the week of Nov. 14 to find out what progress is being made in economic improvement.

The teams will analyze what each town has accomplished so far this year and point out needs for future growth as part of the 1960 community development program, according to chairman of the Community Development Committee Harry Huether, of Lexington.

The teams are composed of industrial and community development specialists and will take along depth questionnaires or evaluation sheets for checking results. Huether said that "beautification" — theme of the 161 community development contest would be high on the list of the evaluation plan. Other topics include tourist potential, industrial potential, transportation, recreation, municipal improvements, health, sanitation, education, retail trade, youth, agriculture, city planning and spiritual welfare.

Among towns to be visited are: Central City, Clinton, Elkton, Fulton, Greenville, Hickman, Murray, Princeton, Marion, Russellville, Eddyville, Bowling Green, Corydon, Dawson Springs, Frankfort, Leitchfield, Madisonville, Morgantown, Sturgis, Hartford, Calhoun, Bardonia, Campbellsville, Columbia, Edmonson, Elizabethtown.

whether that group was a Protestant group or Catholic group. I do not trust the intentions of any religious body or church that attempts to influence the political beliefs of its members or our society as a whole. When the religious affiliation of any candidate for public office is attacked and used as a reason to brand him as being dangerous to our country's government, it is that attack, and the prejudice behind it that is dangerous. If one person can be denied the rights of full citizenship because of his religious beliefs, any other person could also be denied those rights.

This letter is not an endorsement of any political candidate. It is my firm conviction that no church, or minister speaking in the name of his church should endorse any political candidate against another. As ministers, it seems that we are commissioned to preach and teach the Scriptures, and minister unto the spiritual needs of those who need our advice and help. In my opinion, when any minister of any religious faith attempts to influence voting, he has broken the principle of separation of church and state. Rev. William L. Cottrell, Jr.

the bond issue is passed, no additional taxes will be necessary for amortization of the bonds.

He pointed out that the 1956 highway bond issue requires only $3.5 million a year from current revenues for amortization requirements of both bond issues probably would not exceed even million a year at the most from current revenues.

Ward emphasized that every county in the state has an interest in the matching of federal funds for highway purposes. He said many local officials do not realize that there is a great number of federal-aid secondary roads in every county of the state which are eligible for federal aid participation.

He said he surprised Pike county officials last week by pointing out that that county alone has 350 miles of FAS roads.

Ward said, "Every county in Kentucky will get its fair share of the receipts of the bond issue in this type of highways which are important farm-to-market highways."

ment by a distinguished Kentuckian, Judge Edward C. O'Rear of Versailles, that he is NOT an official of the so-called Committee of 1,000.

"That collapse, which was certain to come, began when Mr. Harry LaViers, Paintsville business man, denounced the group for using the name which was employed during the 1947 campaign when LaViers, O'Rear and others opposed the call for an UNLIMITED constitutional convention.

"It continued when it was revealed that statements released in the name of Mitchell Fannin, its alleged Executive Director, were actually issued when he was more than a thousand miles from Kentucky. To date, Fannin has not been found by newsmen.

"Yesterday, in an interview by Bill Small, WHAS News Director, the collapse became final when Judge O'Rear told Small that he has no official connection with the group.

"The so-called Committee of 1,000 now emerges as the Committee of half-a-dozen, give or take, one or two."

him on the back also. Judy and Mike were campaign managers for the Democrats and Republicans, respectively.

Bobby Jo Hancock conducted the events of Wednesday morning and Lynn Bushart gave a complete and thorough biography of Senator Kennedy.

The mock election was conducted by the Kennel staff with Karen Dublin, editor and Kay Morris, coeditor of the paper, in charge. They are to be commended for their civility and their efficiency. No student could vote in the election unless they had registered previously. The Democrats registered out-numbered the Republicans.

Fulton County Schools Seek New Tax Funds

On November 8 residents of Fulton County, outside of the Independent Fulton City School District, will be asked to vote for or against levying a special annual tax for general school purposes in the Fulton County School District. The tax will be at the rate of not more than 50 cents on each $100.00 assessed valuation of property subject to school taxation and to be in addition to all other school taxes authorized and presently levied in the School District. The proceeds of the tax will be used and applied for any lawful and proper school purposes, a school board office said today.

This week The News received a letter, supporting the special tax, from Earl Taylor, chairman of the Fulton County Board of Education, Fulton County Schools.

Mr. Taylor's letter follows:

TO THE CITIZENS OF FULTON COUNTY:

Here are the reasons why you are being asked to support the Special Tax for General School Purposes in the Fulton County School District.

This tax will provide for:

1. A new High School and Grade Center at Riverview.
2. New classrooms for Western School (Elementary).
3. Paint and repair of buildings and install new furnaces for Cayce Elementary and Hickman Elementary.
4. Expansion of facilities that may arise due to the location in the near future of a new industry within our area.
5. Expansion of our curricula, especially in the field of foreign language for Grade and High Schools.

Your support of this tax is earnestly solicited.

Sincerely yours,
Earl Taylor, Chairman

Bad Child Problem Starts At Home; Former Student Asks Parents Help

(The following article could be called a "letter to the editor". It is we encourage more people to write their thoughts, constructive ones, to us and we'll gladly print them. The writer of this article, a high school student of the immediate past, has the courage to express his opinions and his concern over problems of today. It is thought-provoking and exhibits some real feeling and emotions behind those thoughts. We wish we could get more such articles on any given subject and invite you to send them in. We ask that you identify yourself. If the article deserves printing we shall withhold your name if you ask us. But WE WILL NOT accept anonymous articles. We are not interested in the opinions of those persons who are so short on courage that they will not sign their names... ed's note.

There are projects to beautiful the Twin-Cities. There are projects to bring new industry to the Twin-Cities. There is also a struggle over TVA and KU electrical power to make more reasonable electrical rates available to the citizens of this area.

All this is progress and all these things need doing. The populace of these twin communities appreciate the advancements that are being made. But... the one thing that needs the most improvement isn't being touched upon.

The calibre of the high school graduates is at an all-time low. This deficiency does not rest entirely on the shoulders of the local school systems, but on both the parents and the school system.

Just stop and look around. Take notice of the last year's graduates and the pupils that will graduate in the next few years. Stop some of them and question and examine them. Notice the little things that help make a desirable citizen. How many of them say "Sir" and "Ma'am"? On the whole they seem to be well versed in several areas, but the basic fundamentals of good citizenry are missing in many of them.

The school children of today are "smarter" than the ones of yesterday, but it generally is "smart alecness" instead of knowledge and intellect. Today, there is little respect for elders. Instead you too often find an attitude, a very strong attitude, of "I know it all, so don't try to teach me anything." Remember these are going to be the citizens of tomorrow. Also, remember not ALL students that graduate are in this pathetic condition, but too many are.

The missing principles that create the terrible result are—pride, dignity, discipline, and mostly "esprit de corps"... the pride of a group, school, organization, or town. These things are missing and the parents and teachers are to blame. Not so many years ago a child or teen-ager who was in this category was considered a problem child. I assume that today we are to consider this an era of mass "problem children." The teachers, especially the ones with several years' experience, are well aware of this mounting problem child status.

This "problem child" condition generally stems from one of two areas: 1. The home—(a.) lack of discipline; (b.) lack of harmony; (c.) broken homes.

2. School, itself—(a.) a general distaste for school; (b.) an unhappy or frightening experience during the early days at school.

It has been a long accepted fact that environment and upbringing mold the personality. This personality can be desirable or undesirable, depending on the quality of the environment and upbringing.

If there is a reasonable amount of discipline and harmony in the home and school room some of it will inevitably be absorbed by the children. The end result—a desirable personality and character for tomorrow's citizens.

I suppose it could be possible to say the parents are to blame. They don't start their children off on the right foot and they're far enough down the wrong road that it would be extremely difficult for the teachers to straighten them out. (Please remember this is hypothetical. The teachers, after several vain attempts to place the children on the right path, shrugs their shoulder and say, "What's the use. If the parents don't help how can we do it along?" If they take this attitude there could be some of the borderline good-bad-students that can adversely affect the "lack of discipline" atmosphere that prevails in the classrooms.

This is a hypothetical situation sit for the purpose of this paper, but it could be part of the gigantic disaster that is resulting in pupils with sub-high school knowledge and qualities being graduated from high school.

These people who "bully" or high hand and cheat their way through school are launched on the sea of life with their bulls full of holes. This accounts for many of the persons drawing unemployment and those behind bars. They try to loaf and "bully" their way through life in the same manner they did through school. They discover they can draw several months' unemployment so why work. The ones who cheated in school try to cheat their way through life and many of them end up in prison. These are not assumptions but facts that came verified by famous psychologists throughout the nation.

The deadbeats, gamblers, drunkards, and criminals don't just happen. Many of them have high school diplomas. Why, then, are they in their condition. Their home or school life, or both, were inadequate. Their potential, their ambitions, their vocational desires were not developed and neither were the fundamentals such as proper grammar. This is happening now. Right here in our Twin-Cities. This locale isn't the only one with this increasing "bad child" problem, but it is the one we are primarily concerned with.

Yes, right now, today, the projects to beautify, industrialize, and make our Twin Cities better for the coming generations are in progress. Why not do something about assuring the future of having generations of the same calibre as the communities we are striving to improve.

It is part of our proud heritage to make our own decisions and mistakes. Another portion of that heritage entitles us to correct our mistakes and differences. Thousands of Americans have fought and died on foreign soil to preserve this heritage so why not make use of this heritage and prevent its going to pot.

Do something today, to insure good citizens tomorrow. Start at home, then inspect the schools, which your tax monies build and support. You expect them to train your children for a future.

See if they are doing their part and be sure you do your part.

Diary of Doin's

(Items gathered along Fulton's merryway for your pleasure and your scrapbook)

The Kentucky Tourist and Travel Commission is doing a fine job in the Fulton area because not too long ago four Fulton ladies decided that this Bluegrass State must be a wonderful place to behold so they took off and saw it. Ruth Scott, Judy Brady, Delmer Houston and Mary Hughes Burrow can tell you now that their slogan is "See Kentucky First," and they ought to know. These ladies donned their travelling clothes and with no particular destination in mind started going eastward and before you know it they were gasping at the breath-taking beauty of the Kentucky mountains, the Bluegrass region and other points in central and eastern Kentucky.

The first points of interest they visited were Abe Lincoln's birthplace at Hodgenville and then they soaked up the incomparable beauty of "My Old Kentucky Home," made famous by the immortal composition of Stephen Foster. "My Old Kentucky Home," as all of us know is at Bardstown, just a stone's throw from the famous Lexington horse farms and the heart of the Bluegrass region of Kentucky.

At Frankfort they saw the capitol building and a museum, where they enjoyed an exhibit by Artist Mason. There, they had their pictures taken by a staff photographer.

The group visited Berea College, which they found very interesting, and ate at Boone's Tavern, which is owned by the college. Students work there to pay their way through school. Ruth said that the food was "just out of this world."

Cumberland Falls was a beautiful sight to see, they all agreed. They spent the night there, then they returned home the long way, driving as much as possible through the beautiful Cumberland Mountains.

HERE'S A HANDY TIP— Don't leave your calls hanging in mid-air. If you have a wall phone, you need not let the receiver dangle by the cord while you leave the phone for a moment during a conversation. There's a notch on top for "parking" the receiver. Take a look at the illustration and you'll see just how it's done.

Johnson Has Answer To Low Farm Income

A Democratic Congress and a Democratic President will solve the Nation's Farm Problem of decreasing prices for what they sell and rising costs of things they must buy, Keen Johnson, Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, is pledging audiences as he stumps the State, seeking votes in the Nov. 8 election

Republicans Have Cost Farmers Heavily Last 8 Years

During the last 8 years, under Eisenhower, Nixon, Benson and Cooper, farm income losses reached an unbelievable total of $19.9 billions. The parity ratio, which was 100 per cent in every Democratic postwar year, dropped to 77 per cent in 1960. Average income on a farm in 1959 was $463 less than in 1952, while the Republican administration presided over the liquidation of 900,000 farm units.

Democrats Dedicated To Parity Income For Farmers

Democratic President Kennedy will restore common sense and common justice to our national farm policy. If you elect Keen Johnson to be your Senator, he will go along with the President 100 per cent on this. Cooper cannot and will not do this. If the Republican program of no controls and low support prices is continued another 4 years, prices for farm products will be down a 'killing' 40 per cent.

Democrats Do Care About Farmers' Welfare

Kennedy's program calls for growing food for stomachs, not for storage. It calls for support for the farmer's prices and income at a level which will cover his costs and a reasonable profit, and at the same time, reduce substantially costs to the American taxpayer. These are reasonable objectives. They are not impossible. A new Democratic administration will achieve them.

Colored Woman Charged With Cutting Husband

Luke Knight, 49, Negro, who lives on the Doc Nanny farm about three miles south of Fulton, was severely cut about the head and neck early Thursday morning, and the colored man told Constable John Adams of South Fulton that his wife, Willie Bell, also 49, tried to kill him.

At 2:30 Thursday morning Doc Nanny called for a Hornbeak ambulance and the ambulance driver said he picked up the colored man walking down the road from his home. Knight was taken to Hillview Hospital. He was dismissed about noon Thursday. Doctors said that he had lost a considerable amount of blood.

Constable Adams said he was called about 3 a. m. and at that time arrested the colored woman and after holding her in jail a while released her. She said a white man in a Ford car cut her husband. Later, her husband signed a warrant for her arrest, and Adams said that he arrested her again Thursday afternoon charging her with attempting to commit assault with a deadly weapon.

VOTE "YES"

FOR BETTER ROADS AND PARKS BOND ISSUE BECAUSE...

The 1956 bond issue made it possible to start the greatest road building program in Kentucky's history. These bond funds will soon be obligated or spent.

NOW—huge additional Federal funds are available to continue this vast program. Over 19,000 miles of roads—in all parts of the Commonwealth—are eligible for participation.

A "YES" vote will keep the road program going without increasing our taxes. If Kentucky's Federal Aid funds are not matched, they would be forfeited to other states.

If the bond issue is turned down, our accelerated road program would soon stop—or, our taxes must be increased to match Federal Aid.

After careful consideration every major group in Kentucky has officially endorsed the bond issue. Study this partial list—chances are many are familiar to you:

KENNEDY FARMERS—

(Continued from Page One) the farmer gets 28 cents. Even if the farmer gave his cotton away, you'd still have to pay $3.66. For the purchase of a house dress costing about $3.34, the farmer receives 33 cents for the produced cotton and if the farmer donated his cotton, the house wife would still pay $3.01. And take sheets that normally sell for about $2.35. The farmer receives 74 cents and again if he donated his cotton, the sheet would still cost $1.61.

Farmers have led all other segments of the economy in becoming more efficient. In the last 20 years the amount of farm labor used has decreased 46 percent; whereas, the output per man-hour has increased 145 percent. Farm production has increased 57 percent. If in 1959 the farmers had used 1939 production methods, the nation's food cost would have been an additional 11 billion dollars. In 1940 one farm worker supported 11 persons but in 1959, one farm worker supported 24 persons. Let's look at what this has cost the farmer.

In 1940 his investment per farm worker was $3,400. But in 1959 the investment per farm worker has skyrocketed to $20,500—some $6,500 more than invested by capital for the factory worker. From a business of view, one would say the farmer has really "cashed in" on this improvement in production. Let's set the record straight. In 1959, the income per person for farm population was $960 as compared to $2,202 for the non-farm population.

Every year farmers buy more petroleum than any other industry. 6 1-2 million tons of finished steel, rubber equal to amount used in tires on all new cars. 50 million tons of chemicals, and more electricity than is used in 5 of our larger cities.

Let's look at the jobs the farmer creates for other people. Six to seven million persons are now engaged in manufacturing and selling farm production supplies, 7 1-2 million persons work on farms, 10 to 11 million persons process and distribute farm products. Farm suppliers plus farm workers plus processors of agricultural products equals two out of every five persons employed in the United States.

These are the facts. America has cheap food — but it is the farmer who is subsidizing the American public. Farm prices should and must be a level which cover his costs and a reasonable profit.

Coroner Voelpel Continues Probe Of Wilson Death In Tragic House Fire

Duane Elmer Wilson, who was 70 and nearly blind, lost his life Friday morning when the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hood, in Highlands, was destroyed by fire.

Mr. Wilson suffered from shock, first and second degree burns of the face and hands, and of suffocation, according to Walter Voelpel, Fulton County coroner.

Mr. Voelpel is continuing his investigation and has not as yet returned a verdict, but said that unless something further is brought out in the investigation his verdict should be that Mr. Wilson's death was an accident as there were no marks of any kind on his body.

Mrs. Shirley Morris, 18-year-old daughter of the Hoods, said she and her 14-months-old daughter, Debra Kay, were in the yard and heard an explosion in the house. She said it apparently was caused by a gas stove.

Fire Chief Nemo Williams said the house was in flames when the fire department arrived. Chief Williams, Billy Westmoreland and John McAlister, members of the fire department, searched the house and found Mr. Wilson's body.

Funeral services for Mr. Wilson were held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Harris Methodist Church. The Rev. O. A. Marrs officiated. Burial under direction of Hornbeak Funeral Home, was in the Chapel Hill Cemetery.

To My Friends In The Fulton County School District:

All of you know that I did not seek the position I now hold on the Fulton County School Board. I was appointed by the State Board of Education at a difficult time in school board affairs, in the hope that the people of the Fulton County School system could direct their efforts toward better education for our school children instead of a continuation of the long standing controversy.

I am happy to say that for the first time in more than four years the Fulton County School Board is working in a great spirit of harmony between school officials and patrons. While I do not take full credit for this new attitude among our people, but I will say that I have done everything in my power to bring about an agreeable and pleasant atmosphere in the school system and I think I have succeeded.

In the spirit of continuing this attitude of harmony and cooperation and with the full knowledge that my first responsibility is to bring about better and more wholesome education for your children and mine, I ask your vote and influence in my candidacy for a full term on the Fulton County School Board.
